Health Nugget

Grounding: Using direct skin contact with the earth or natural bodies of water is zero cost. However, during the winter months and inclement weather, this natural form is more difficult to achieve. For more benefit, longer periods of grounding is recommended and 30 minutes to 1 hour is harder to carve out that time in a busy day. To allow longer times, or for convenience, grounding mats, sheets, or patches that mimic the process of natural earthing and plug into an electrical outlet can be used to allow you to multi-task and ground while you sit, or sleep. For homes with low quality electrical circuits or older homes without grounded outlets, grounding mats that have a stake that is put directly into the earth can be used.

Oschman, J. L., Chevalier, G., & Brown, R. (2015). The effects of grounding (earthing) on inflammation, the immune response, wound healing, and prevention and treatment of chronic inflammatory and autoimmune diseases. Journal of Inflammation Research, 8, 83-96.
